TRAINING INSTRUCTOR

Edward Galindo is an experienced leader in the construction equipment industry with more than 20 years of hands-on expertise in equipment sales, customer support, and operator training. He began his career with Ingersoll Rand and continued through the company's transition to Volvo in 2008, building a strong reputation for product knowledge, customer relationships, and practical field experience.

For the past four years, Edward has served as an Electromobility Product Manager, helping guide customers and organizations through the evolving landscape of electric construction equipment. He has been directly involved in advancing e-mob solutions, supporting fleet transitions, and delivering hundreds of operator familiarization trainings—many focused specifically on Electromobility equipment best practices, features and benefits. In addition to his industry leadership, Edward serves as a Board Member of the California Rental Association, where he contributes to shaping the future of the rental and equipment industry. His combination of technical expertise, real-world field experience, and forward-thinking perspective on electrification makes him a trusted voice in the construction and equipment community.

E-Mobility in Off-Road Equipment

Transitioning to electric mobility (e-mobility) with off-road equipment is critical to creating a cleaner and more efficient urban communities. Heavy equipment like excavators and wheel loaders are just now becoming available in electric options. Join Edward as he provides an overview of the technologies that are driving low and zero-emission (sustainable) equipment and how to transition. Topics include an overview of eMobility, charging solutions and infrastructure upgrades, electric vs. diesel, and practical implementation.
